A SUDDEN DEATH.

Abraham Bolster, Jr., compositor, employed lately in the Gazette office, was taken to the Station House, at a quarter past 7 last evening, in a hack, from near the Fish Market, quite helpless, and had to be carried in by the officers. Dr. McWayne was sent for at half-past 7 this morning. Bolster's father was also sent for, and arrived about 8 o'clock. The young man was then at the point of death, and expired a few minutes later. Dr. McWayne, assisted by Dr. Martin, held a post mortem this afternoon. They found that death had been caused by effusion of blood on the brain. A slight external bruise was found on the head, believed to be the result of a fall, but so slight that the doctors doubted that the effusion was caused by it. They believe the effusion was caused by the excessive use of liquor. Deputy Marshal Dayton is holding an inquiry, but does not consider an inquest necessary.

Princess Helena has written a memoir of her brother, the Duke of Albany, and this will accompany the forthcoming volume of his public addresses.

President James Polk's papers, in the possession of surviving members of his family, are undergoing a close revision and editing, and an elaborate work, which will include a careful review of the Polk Administration and a biographical study of the President's life and character, is to be issued during the coming winter.

The origin of Bulwer's character of "Nydia" has recently been described in reminiscences of its creator, John Auldjo, who has recently died. While writing the "Last Days of Pompeii," the author, at a loss how, with due regard to the possible, to effect the rescue of "Glaucus" and "Ione" from the doomed city, darkened by a cloud of ashes, consulted his friend Auldjo. He suggested that Bulwer should provide the lovers with a blind guide, and, acting upon this suggestion, the author created the girl "Nydia," who, though sightless, was able to find her way by the instinct which the blind possess.

Talking about busy men, who leave their homes early and get back after dark and never see their children, a man of that sort was hurrying away one morning when he found that his little boy had got up before him and was playing on the sidewalk. He told the child to go in. Child wouldn't. Man spanked him, and went to business. Child went in howling. The mother said, "What's the matter?" "Man hit me," blubbered the youngster. "What man?" "That man that stays here Sundays."—[Boston Post.

Great Excitement in Wales about a Marvellous Cure.

Living Six Years Without

Going to Bed.

MR. ELLIOTT.—While spending a few days at the pleasant seaside town of Aberystwyth, Cardiganshire, Wales, I heard related what seemed to me either a fabulous story or a marvellous cure. The story was that a poor sufferer who had not been able to lie down in bed for six long years, given up to die by all the Doctors, had been speedily cured by some Patent Medicine. I was related with the more implicit confidence from the circumstance, as was said, that the Vicar of Llanystyd was familiar with the facts, and could vouch for the truth of the report.

Having a little curiosity to know how such stories grow in travelling, I took the liberty while at the village of Llanystyd to call upon the Vicar, the Rev. T. Evans, and to enquire about this wonderful cure. Though a total stranger to him, both he and his wife most graciously entertained me in a hall hour's conversation, principally touching the case of Mr. Pugh, in which they seemed to take a deep and sympathetic interest, having been familiar with his sufferings, and now rejoiced in what seemed to them a most remarkable cure.

The Vicar remarked that he presumed his name had been connected with the report from his having mentioned the case to Mr. John Thomas, a chemist of Llanon. He said Mr. Pugh was formerly a resident of their parish, but was now living in the parish of Llanddeiniol.

He strongly vouched for Mr. Pugh's character as a respectable farmer and worthy of credit. I left the venerable Vicar with a livelier sense of the happy relation of a pastor and people, feeling that he was one who truly sympathized with all who are afflicted in mind, body, or estate.

On my return to Aberystwyth, I was impressed with a desire to see Mr. Pugh, whose reputation stood so high. His farm is called Pannu-Mawr, signifying "above the dingle," situated near the summit of a smooth round hill, overlooking a beautiful valley in which is situated the lovely ivy-mantled Church of Llanddeiniol. I found Mr. Pugh, apparently about 40 years old, of medium height, rather slight, with a pleasant and intelligent face. I told him I had heard of his great affliction and of his remarkable and almost miraculous relief, and that I had come to learn from his own lips, what there was of truth in the reports.

Mr. Pugh remarked that his neighbor had taken a kindly and sympathetic interest in his case for many years, but of late their interest had been greatly awakened by a happy change in his condition. What you report as having heard abroad, said he, is substantially true, with one exception. I never understood that my case was ever given up as hopeless by any Physician. I have been treated by several Doctors hereabouts, as good as any in Wales, but unfortunately no permanent relief of theirs ever brought the desired relief.

Fifteen years ago, he said, I first became conscious of a sour and deranged stomach and loss of appetite, which the Doctors told me was Dyspepsia. When food I could hold in my stomach seemed to do me no good and was often thrown up with painful retchings. This was followed after a time with a hoarseness and a raw soreness of the throat which the Doctors called bronchitis, and I was treated for that, but with little success. Then came shortness of breath and a sense of suffocation, especially at night, with clammy sweat, and I would have to get out of bed and sometimes open a door or window in winter weather to fill my lungs with the cold air.

About six years ago I became so bad that I could not sleep in bed, but had to take my uneasy rest and dreamy sleep sitting in an armchair. My affliction seemed to be working downward into my bowels as well as upwards into my lungs and throat. In the violent coughing spasms which were more frequent, my abdomen would expand and collapse, and at times it would seem that I should suffocate. All this time I was reduced in strength so that I could perform no hard labor and my spirits were consequently much depressed.

Early in this last spring I had a still more severe spasmodic attack, and my family and neighbors became alarmed, believing that certainly I would not survive, when a neighbor, who had some knowledge of the use of the medicine, sent to Aberystwyth by the driver of the Omnibus Post, some seven miles distant, and fetched a bottle of Mother Seigel's Curative Syrup.

This medicine, they administered to me according to the directions, when to their surprise and delight no less than my own, the spasm ceased. I became at ease, and my stomach was calmed. My bowels were moved as by a gentle cathartic, and I felt a sense of quiet comfort all through such as I had not before realized in many years. I could walk around the house and breathe comfortably in a few hours after I had taken the medicine. I have continued to take the medicine daily now for something over two months, and I can lie down and sleep sweetly at night and have not since had a recurrence of those terrible spasms and dreamy sleep. I have been so long broken down and reduced in my whole system that I have not tried to perform any very hard outdoor labor, deeming it best to be prudent lest by over-exertion I may do myself injury before my strength is fully restored. I feel that my stomach and bowels have been and are being thoroughly renovated and renewed by the medicine. In fact I feel like a new man.

I have been much congratulated by my neighbors, especially by the good Vicar of Llanystyd, who with his sympathetic wife have come three miles to shed tears of joy on my recovery. I had Mr. Pugh good-bye, happy that even one at least among thousands had found a remedy for an aggravating disease.

Believing this remarkable case of Dyspeptic Action should be known to the public, I beg to submit the above facts as they are related to me. 299 It wly] F. T. W.
